

Big Bend Levee Falls Before Rushing Waters

Break Will Affect 25,000 People and 60,000 Acres in the Vicinity of Bayou—Refugees Flee With Only the Clothing They Were Wearing—Loss From New Flood in Sugar Bowl Region Estimated at $10,000,000.

Baton Rouge, La., May 13 (AP).—The tremendous pressure of the greatest Mississippi river flood in history finally broke down the Big Bend levee today at Moreauville on the Bayou des Glaives.

The levee, made of clay, had resisted the steadily rising flood of the waters running down from Arkansas and through the crevasses on the west bank of the Mississippi which already have blanketed 13 Louisiana parishes. For the past week more than 1,000 workers labored day and night to strengthen the embankment and efforts will be made if possible to close the break.

25,000 People Affected.
John M. Parker, Louisiana flood director, said that twenty-five thousand people and sixty thousand acres in the immediate vicinity of the Bayou, mostly in Vachell's Parish, will be affected by the break.

As the muddy waters from the break run through the Atchafalaya basin into Grand Lake and through its bayous to the gulf, sixty thousand more people will be driven from their homes and nearly 1,000,000 acres, much of it marshland, is expected to be inundated.

The new flood also is expected to break down levees on the Atchafalaya river and basin, spreading that stream's swollen waters over a huge, thickly populated region, jeopardizing more than 150,000 people.

Loss Estimated at $10,000,000.
The region is the sugar bowl of Louisiana; the southern parishes where practically all the sugar cane of the country is grown. Besides sugar cane, cotton, rice, corn and sweet potatoes are leading crops.

State Commissioner of Agriculture Wilson today estimated the loss from the new flood to be $10,000,000. The parishes in the flood path include the lower half of Atchafalaya, south of the Red River, one-third of St. Landry, two-thirds of St. Martin and two-fifths of Iberville, while a small part of Rapides will be under water.

Practically all of the refugees fled with only the clothing they were wearing. Most of them were men who had been working on the levee. Two days ago they had stripped themselves to shirts and trousers while working in the hot sun. When yesterday's rain came they did not stop work to put on more clothing. Consequently many reached Terrebonne chilled and suffering from exposure.

Much Illness Feared.
Mr. Parker expressed the belief that this might cause much illness and instructed the boats in the vicinity to lend all possible aid and sent word by radio for the coast guard vessels near Hymersport with 18 surf boats to go and evacuate marooned refugees.

The levee at Bordelonneville, on Bayou des Glaives, broke this morning, according to word received by Mr. Parker. The crevasse, according to this information, is about 108 feet wide. The break is about 150 miles northwest of New Orleans and on the opposite side of the river.

High Winds and rains delayed Miss Winifred Callahan, Red Cross worker, in her departure from Natchez for Harrisonburg. Klugehardt and Sicily Island refugees camps with smallpox vaccine and anti-typhoid serum, that was much needed, particularly at Harrisonburg, from which 20 smallpox victims were evacuated.

CHERRY BLOSSOM TIME
PULLED BY MOURNING.
Tokyo, May 13 (AP).—The cherry blossoms that usually attend cherry blossom time in Japan was somewhat curtailed this year on account of mourning for the late emperor.

Police forbade parades of factory girls, singing, music, opera air speeches, dancing or parades of boats, bird drinking or the wearing of ridiculous costumes.

Notwithstanding the numerous deaths all of Tokyo's parks were crowded with Japanese who viewed with delight the blossoms of some 13,000 cherry trees.

Auto Accident Cases in Court

Jury Renders Verdict for Defendant for $700 in Action Resulting from Collision Here—Ellenville Negligence Actions Taken Up

A verdict in the sum of $700 for defendant, Louis Allen of Tannersville, against the plaintiff, J. Monroe Birch of Pine Bush, was returned in the Supreme court Thursday afternoon in an action brought by Birch against Allen to recover damages to a Rickenbacker sedan which was damaged in an accident on March 11, 1924, at the corner of Broadway and Foxhall avenue. The defendant, who drove a Buick coupe, sought to recover under a counterclaim for damages to his Buick car which was badly wrecked.

Plaintiff contended that the Buick car of Allen had proceeded out of Foxhall avenue and turned sharp left to avoid striking a car coming down Broadway. It turned directly in the path of the Rickenbacker and thereby caused the accident. Allen on the other hand claimed that he had proceeded out of Foxhall avenue, saw the Rickenbacker car some distance down Broadway and started to cross Broadway to his right hand side. When at the center of the street he claimed the Rickenbacker car, which was coming at a fair clip and apparently not in control of the driver, struck his Buick car at the rear wheel wrecking the running gear and damaging the body. He testified that he was to the center of the street with his front wheels across the trolley tracks in the center and that there was ample room for the Rickenbacker car to pass to his right.

Ellenville Actions On Trial.
Two negligence actions were taken up for trial at the conclusion of the Birch-Allen case. The actions are brought by Dr. Jacob Blumberg of Ellenville and his wife against Rudolph Lustig and another to recover for injuries sustained by Mrs. Blumberg when her car was struck by a car driven by Ben Funk of Wurtsboro, who was driving a Cadillac car which was used to convey passengers from the Lustig boarding house to points desired.

Mrs. Blumberg in company with a lady friend were on their way to Middletown to shop. They were in the Blumberg Ford coupe and when passing through Wurtsboro, Mrs. Blumberg passed the defendant's car, which was proceeding slowly down the street. Some distance on, there was a Chevrolet car parked to the right of the street. She stopped her car two or three feet back in order to allow another car coming toward her to pass. While standing still her car was struck by the Cadillac car driven by Funk from the rear.

She was thrown against the wheel of her car which was driven forward against the parked Chevrolet. The accident happened on August 15, 1924. At the time Mrs. Blumberg was in a delicate condition and suffered serious consequences as a result of the injuries to her abdomen and chest. She continued to Middletown after the accident but returned home and later was attended by a doctor and confined to her bed. She was compelled to go to a Port Jervis hospital where she remained for some time.

Judge William D. Cunningham appears for the plaintiffs and F. C. Merritt for Max Lustig and Katz and Rosen for the defendants.

NEW YORK CENTRAL BUYS 39 GIANT LOCOMOTIVES
The New York Central Railroad on Thursday awarded a contract to the American Locomotive Company of Schenectady for fifty-nine giant locomotives, capable of hauling twenty passenger cars, which will eliminate the running of principal trains in two or three sections. The locomotives were designed by the engineers of the New York Central and the American Locomotive Company. A test was made between Albany and Schenectady and one new-type locomotive which was recently completed pulled forty coaches in the same time that the ordinary type pulled eight. The new engines are eighty-eight feet in length and about four times the height of the DeWitt Clinton, the first locomotive of the New York Central Railroad.

Intensive Hunt Brings No Word Of French Aces

Reports That the Whirl of a Motor Was Heard By Harbor Grace Residents Leads to Nothing Tangible—Not Sighted Over Icelandic Waters.

(By the Associated Press.)
Intensive search on sea and land still brings no tidings of the finding of the French aviators, Captains Nungesser and Goll now four full days over due at New York on their flight from Paris.

Reykjavik, Iceland, sent word today that a watch on the Icelandic waters had failed to sight the missing "White Bird." The minister of posts at Johns, N. F., has received word that Fletcher, Beck, of Sound Island, Placentia heard the hum of an airplane last Monday in the fog overhead but this and other reports that the whirl of a motor in fog had been heard by three residents of Harbor Grace, has led to nothing tangible in the hunt for the French aces in the wilds of the British colony.

Weather conditions were none too favorable today for the planned start of the Bellanca monoplane early Saturday for Paris. Captain Lindbergh spent today over his plane "The Spirit of St. Louis" and says he does not propose to hop off until the weather is promising.

Reached Atlantic Coast.
New York, May 13 (AP).—A thorough search of wild and rocky areas of the extreme northeastern Atlantic coast was under way today for Captain Nungesser and Goll as new reports bolstered the theory that their lost biplane passed over the fog-covered region last Monday morning.

Support to the belief that the French aviators reached the Atlantic coast was seen in the report of two lobster fishermen that an unidentified plane had passed over St. Mary's Bay, N. S., last Monday morning. Previous reports from Harbor Grace, N. F., were that six persons there had heard an airplane pass over that town the same morning.

Although Harbor Grace and St. Mary's Bay are more than six hundred miles apart, the organized search by radio, ships and airplanes was given new impetus as Newfoundland and the maritime provinces are in the path laid out by Captain Nungesser before he hopped off Sunday on his 3,800 mile flight for New York.

Supporting the belief that the missing airmen may be found in some isolated point in the northeastern part of the continent, American naval hydrographers expressed the theory that if the fliers are alive they are probably somewhere in Labrador.

Noting the possibility that the aviators may be found somewhere in the vast wastelands of the region, authorities point out that difficulties of fast communication in the isolated sections of the country may delay word of their safety for weeks, perhaps months.

The lobster fishermen at St. Mary's Bay told newspapermen the plane they saw was heading in a westerly direction across the mouth of the Bay of Fundy.

Labrador May Hold Secret.
The belief that some densely wooded and mountainous section of Labrador may hold the secret of the lost "White Bird" was based by hydrographers on the assumption that the plane motor had no trouble, that the wind velocity took the aviators to the north of Newfoundland and that the machine's altimeter saved them from collision with icebergs or land obstructions. If the machine did not reach the Labrador coast, hydrographers said, there was little chance that the plane would remain aloft at sea.

Naval officials based their statement on the assumption that Nungesser and Goll, halted by fog in their southern course, had turned further north across Newfoundland and away from the ice, fogs and rugged land in the northern part of the region.

Nungesser planned to change his course if weather conditions interfered with flying on a southerly route, and authorities say, he may have headed inland toward the St. Lawrence river which he was expected to have followed as far as Montreal where the flight was to turn toward New York.

The airmen may have veered away from Belle Isle straight and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, authorities said, and continued into lower Labrador.

The hydrographers' report to Secretary of the Navy without said that in the darkness they probably were not expecting to sight land so early and might have passed over the coast line and proceeded inland without knowing it.

If this happened, the experts asserted, the airmen may have been forced down by bad weather, or crashed into the side of a mountain. A landing in one of the many lakes in the Labrador interior was cited as the "best chance of survival" for the pair.

Ask Actress to Identify Letters

Dorothy Mackaye Will Be Asked To Identify Love Missives, Regarded By The State as Its Trump Card.

Los Angeles, May 13 (AP).—A strenuous effort to prove that the love of Dorothy Mackaye, actress, was the prize in the bare knuckle fight between Paul Kelly, film actor, and Ray Raymond, musical comedy star, husband of the actress, who died after the battle, was promised by the prosecution today in Kelly's murder trial.

The state delved into the past of Kelly and Miss Mackaye when it gathered a series of telegrams and love letters alleged to have passed between the two and announced that the actress today would be asked on the stand to identify them. The purported love missives are regarded by the state as its trump card.

Evidence thus far developed through the testimony of Charlotte Emma Lee, negro maid in the Raymond home, who witnessed the fight, has indicated that on numerous occasions when Miss Mackaye failed to return home at night, the maid talked to her by telephone or ensuing mornings in Kelly's apartment. This was during her appearance in the leading role of "The Dove" at a Los Angeles theatre.

In statements to the police during the investigation of Raymond's death, Miss Mackaye insisted that her friendship for Kelly was "good and noble" and her testimony yesterday indicated that she will reiterate this before she leaves the witness stand. Kelly, however, frequently has declared to the authorities his love for the actress.

TO DECIDE TONIGHT
WHY THEY ARE STRIKING.
Recently Employed Postess Leads Striking Silk Mill Workers.

Weavers at the Kattermann & Mitchell silk mills on Cornell street, led by Mrs. Clark, said to be a poetess and newspaper writer, who resides in one of the outlying sections of Kingston, went on strike at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

According to a delegation of two strikers who called at The Freeman office shortly after the walkout, no grievances were specified and no demands had been made, but such grievances and demands, if any, are to be decided on at a meeting of workers to be held at White Eagle Hall on Delaware avenue tonight.

In a general way, the delegation made it clear that the demands are for more money because under existing conditions at the mill only the experienced weavers can make high wages.

None of the employees in the other departments are on strike. The management of the lace mills was unable to get from the strikers any clear idea of why the strike had been declared, but informed everybody that there was work ready for them. According to the strikers' committee, 150 weavers walked out, leaving only 18 or 20 people at work.

The strike leader, Mrs. Clark, is said to be 32 years old, and has been employed by Kattermann & Mitchell for only a few months.

DODGE CAR, LOADED WITH PHONE OPERATORS, UTSET
Skidding as it passed another car, a Dodge sedan, driven by C. P. In the car at the time beside the driver were four telephone operators, Miss Ann Holley, Miss Leola Smith, Miss Carolyn Godfrey and Miss Margaret Law, all enroute from Kingston to Ellenville. With the exception of Miss Holley, none of the occupants received more than a severe shaking up. Miss Holley was severely bruised about the legs and arms.

County Jail and Village Lockups Get Attention

State Commission of Correction Still Insists Kingston City Should Have Separate Lockup, With Matron, Instead of Using Cells in Basement of County Jail—Conditions at Latter Place Receive Praise—Chief Inspector Makes Recommendations.

Albany, N. Y., May 13 (Special).—Reports of inspection of the Ulster county jail, the so-called city jail of Kingston, and village lockups of Marlborough, New Paltz and Saugerties, have been submitted by Chief Inspector Clifford M. Young to the State Commission of Correction and approved by that commission.

The conditions at the Ulster county jail receive praise but there are several recommendations regarding minor matters.

The chief inspector again recommends that the city of Kingston should provide a "modern, safe and sanitary jail in a suitable location with respect to police headquarters and the city court," with appointment of a police matron and suitable quarters for her.

Marlborough lockup is found to be clean but it is recommended that the town officials consider the matter of erecting a modern fireproof lockup.

The New Paltz lockup should be carefully guarded at all times when there are inmates, is the recommendation of Chief Inspector Young.

At the Saugerties lockup, it is recommended that electric lights be installed and gas discontinued.

The reports in full are as follows: Ulster County Jail, Kingston.

Inspected April 19, 1927. Arthur Rice, sheriff. The staff consists of an under-sheriff, three jailers, a cook and a matron.

At time of inspection the population was 11, classified as follows: Serving sentence, 5 males and 4 females; awaiting trial, 2 males; all were adults. The maximum since January 1st was reported as 23, the minimum 11. All prisoners were separated and classified in accordance with the provisions of Section 92 of the County Law.

This jail, which was built twenty-seven years ago, is fireproof and fairly modern. The present sheriff assumed office January 1, this year, and it is gratifying to report that the jail and entire court-house basement has been thoroughly renovated and some substantial improvements made.

Two shower baths have been installed on the second floor. These were omitted when the jail was built and for fifteen years this Commission has been recommending that they be provided, as the practice of taking prisoners down to the showers in the court prisoners' section was fraught with danger and caused illegal commingling of prisoners.

The bunks are furnished with mattresses, blankets, sheets and pillows with cases. An electric washer has been installed and the facilities for heating water to supply all parts of the jail are adequate. The bedding is clean and a general condition of tidiness prevailed throughout.

Each inmate is permitted to have a bath towel in his cell and is held responsible for it and the cleanliness of all the equipment.

The old hospital or detention rooms adjacent to the court house have been renovated, painted and furnished for the use of officers of the jail. These rooms are fireproof, have concrete floors and barred windows. If needed, they would make desirable detention rooms for prisoners. They had been used for storage for a number of years.

The toilets are of the niche type with iron bowls. These bowls will never be satisfactory until replaced. Enamelled iron niche basins were installed in the cells on the first floor and in the lockup in the basement; these were provided with flushometers operated by push buttons. This work was done several years ago. If heavy vitreous china bowls of the same dimensions as the iron ones could be secured, they doubtless could be adjusted to the present plumbing at a nominal expense.

When the toilets on the second floor were replaced, it would be better to adopt the modern plan of closing the niches and installing vitreous "in-situ" seat bowls in the cells. This as a good job of substantial reconstruction and the board of supervisors then have to time have provided for substantial improvements, such as installing oil burners for the large boilers which heat the court house and jail, adding the electric water in corridors, and now the additional shower units which were so badly needed. In an endeavor to keep this jail up-to-date and sanitary, it is advisable that the board take up the matter of improving the toilet system as suggested. This work could be done a section at a time, thus distributing the cost over a considerable period.

The kitchen which is in the basement, is fairly well equipped and was clean and in order. Three meals a day are provided, substantially as follows: Breakfast—oatmeal with syrup, bread and coffee; dinner—potatoes, beef, butter, apples, etc.; supper—potatoes, beef, butter, apples, etc.

"I see," said the lady. "How kind of you to look after it while they're away."

It would be interesting to know what Mrs. W. G. McAdoo and Mrs. Al Smith think of each other.

MAILLARD'S
Chocolate-Covered
Orange Caramel

THIS is one of the tempting delicacies in a box of Maillard's "Sans Rivet" Chocolates. You can always recognize it by its long, diagonal loop. Maillard's delicious chocolates are each mono-grammed with a special hieroglyphic which indicates their centers.

The original recipe for Maillard's famous caramel was brought from France in 1885 by Henri Maillard himself. Florida orange-juice, crushed, added to this caramel makes it a new delight.

"Where the Good Clothes Come From"

PARENTS OF 24 HAD STRUGGLE

All Born Within 23 Years;
Six Die in Infancy,
18 Alive.

Goodbye, Minn.—Twenty-four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Anton Rosener of this village, all within 23 years.

Among them were five sets of twins. Six of the children died in infancy. Eighteen are living, and all but four have left the parental roof. The last born of the children arrived in 1900—Edward, who with his brothers, William, nineteen, and Theodore, twenty, and a sister, Rosie, twenty-one, remain at home.

Anton Rosener is the village blacksmith, who came here about 23 years ago, after seven years in Hastings, Minn., to which city he immigrated from Austria with his wife and three children.

In those early years there was much blacksmithing, much shoeing, much wagon-making and repairing to be done. The arrival of the vanguard of the amazing procession of children was hailed with joy. With the wages from the Hastings shop, a garden and food prices within reason, they could get along, though they could save nothing.

Borrowed to Buy Beds.

When they came to Goodhue their family had increased to six children, the youngest of whom was three months, the eldest, eleven years. They had acquired few household furnishings and Anton had to borrow money from his partner with which to buy additional furniture, including a bed or two to meet the exigency provided by the "little blessings" that were arriving so frequently.

Business was good, to the blacksmith shop, but, with mounting household expenses—the doctors' bills, the food, the school books—the multiplicity of births caused the parents much concern.

"Would you, if you had your life to live again, like to have another large family?" Mrs. Rosener was asked.

She shook her head; silent a moment while in quick review of the years of her motherhood, then smiled and reconsidering her negative gesture said:

"If I could have good health—"

"Oh, but it was hard work to take care of them," she continued. "I put in a big garden—three lots—and then got use of another lot so I could raise more. I raised all the vegetables for winter use."

"Twents at the table every meal. But I fed them good. We had a cow and pigs—yes—and some apple and plum trees, and a cherry tree, too. I made sauerkraut and did much canning. Butter I made, too."

"I did all the sewing and mending until the girls got large enough to help. I knitted all their stockings. I got clothes from other people and made them over for us. For myself I never went down in my husband's pocket for a cent."

Illness Passed Them By.

Neither husband nor wife has ever been incapacitated by illness of any sort. All the children that have grown up have had excellent health.

"Smallpox, measles, scarlet fever—all around us sometimes," Anton Rosener said, "but my children, they never have none of them. I think I lucky! We don't keep them in house because weather cold or it rain. They stay out much and they keep healthy."

His sons, William and Edward, help their father in the shop, but in an indifferent way. They view blacksmithing in the village as a waning trade. They do not care to learn it. Their brother, Theodore, is a barber, and that is more to their liking. Or, there is Steve, now twenty-six, chief mechanic in the Red Wing fire department. "He has a real job," these younger brothers say.

Grace was the first of the children to leave home. She married Harry Howard, a Minneapolis painter. One after another, the 14 others went away. "I had to shove them out to care for themselves as soon as I could," Mrs. Rosener said sadly. "Now only four left. Rosie marry, but I keep her here just as long as we can get along together."

German Beauties Shy;

Shun Bathing Suits

Berlin.—Germany is soon to have a beauty queen worthy of the title "Frau Deutschland" to participate in international beauty contests.

The crowns of all goddesses, including that of Blüde Quall, who was recently chosen as the prettiest girl from 30 competitors, have been challenged on a surprise contest. So the League of Cultivation of Physical Beauty has organized a contest on the American plan. Forty-four cities already have consented to select their prettiest beauties.

The rates provide that girls will not have to wear bathing suits unless they desire, but as the contest is to be held in the city of Berlin, the contestants must wear the conventional swimsuit. The contest was made official by the city government, because many prominent Germans are at the contest. The winners of the city contests will then enter the finals in Berlin.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Furnished by the American Legion News Service.)

ANNOUNCES CONTEST FOR NEW MEMBERS

Three medals, one of gold, one of silver and a bronze, will be awarded again this year to the three persons getting the highest number of members for the American Legion for 1927. Howard P. Savage, national commander, announced recently.

The continuance of this individual membership-getting contest is the result of the interest shown last year, when the contest for first honors was won by Frank B. Gigliotti of Rome, Italy, and who received the gold medal at the national convention held in Philadelphia. Gigliotti's total number of members he obtained personally was 1,310. The silver medal was awarded to William C. Mundt of Bloomington, Ill., with a score of 601, and the bronze was awarded to Fritz Blumenthal of Oklahoma City, Okla., who obtained 763 members.

This contest is open to all Legionnaires in good standing, and being world-wide in scope, the honor of being the top leader is a coveted one, as membership work is considered one of the most important phases of Legion endeavors, because it has been found that the power of the Legion to do good, in community service and in all other efforts, is as great as its numbers.

Under the rules of the contest, no distinction is made between renewals and new members. The contestants must "sell and close" the prospect. The contest will close August 1. There is to be no assistance from other individuals or from posts, but members previously signed as of 1927, under the above conditions, will count. A certified form is used. It is provided by national headquarters, Indianapolis, Ind., to the contestants entered and requesting same.

Another announcement made by Commander Savage in Legion membership work was that cards, to be known as the "Savage Testimonial of Appreciation," would be awarded to state Legion officers and post commanders and adjutants of those departments, or posts, as the case may be, that equal or surpass by September 10 their average membership of the last four years. The total number of these cards issued last year was 4,926. In the case of departments, the various state officials received the cards when the state accomplished the objective, this occasionally requiring as high as 76 cards in one state.

The testimonial of appreciation cards have proven to be the Legion's most popular form of recognition from national headquarters and constitute virtually the only thing going direct from the national commander.

The total number of department officials receiving the Commander McGuiggan cards last year was 341. There were 4,485 post officials, commanders and adjutants, who received them.

Pershing to Help Judge Legion Poster Contest

Gen. John J. Pershing is among the prominent figures of the country who are to act as a jury in selecting the prize winners in a new 1927 American Legion poster contest, recently inaugurated. The chosen design will supersede the one that has been appearing throughout the United States in the last few months as part of the membership drive.

Three prizes are to be awarded, $1,000 for the first, $500 for the second, and $200 for the third. The contest is being conducted by Volume 220 of the "Forty and Eight," Room 306, 180 North LaSalle street, Chicago, assisted by the National Poster Art Alliance. All artists are eligible. The selection of the prize winners will take place in New York between September 1 and 10 in time to take the winning poster to the Paris convention of the Legion.

Among the other judges will be Harford MacFider, assistant secretary of war; Charles A. Mills, national commander of the "Forty and Eight," the playground and honor society of the Legion, and Mrs. Adella Wright Macaulay, national president of the auxiliary.

War on Caterpillars Is Post's Civic Program

A campaign to exterminate tent caterpillars which have decimated trees in Ansonia, Conn., each summer for several years, has been started by Emil Senger post there as part of its community service program this year. Cash prizes have been offered for the boys and girls bringing in the largest amount of eggs of the pest, and a publicity program has been launched to bring about concerted action of all citizens against the caterpillar.

Will $500 Be Paid

Mrs. Emma Lombardy, of Omaha, Neb., who did not have any sons, took pride in the American boys in the World war and later the members of the American Legion. She died recently and her will contained $500 of her small estate for the Omaha post of the Legion.

Slow Progression

The transformation in the United States from a low order of industrial organization to a higher order did not begin until the last half of the nineteenth century and its full effects were not felt until the second decade after the Civil war.

Woman Runs "Dude"

Ranch, and Is Writer
San Francisco.—With the "rah, rah" of undergraduate cowboys on the Hawaiian "dude ranch" ringing in her ears, Miss Armine von Tempel pegged away at her typewriter, nourishing in odd moments an ambition to become an author.

When her father died from the effects of an injury sustained in roping a bull, she was left with a cattle ranch and a young brother and sister to support.

"I did everything from cooking and pitching tents to cutting firewood and teaching dudes to ride without galling a horse," she relates, "but I would not swap the eight hard years of my life that I struggled before I sold my first book for anything."

"Hula," Miss von Tempel's first successful novel, has run through three editions, and publishers have accepted two more.

River's Course Changed

The Isarno river, in Italy, is being taken from its bed about eight miles south of Brassanone, and carried through a tunnel to within two miles of Bolzano, where it will be dropped 700 feet.

The horse-power to be generated at this new electric station will be 250,000, and the current will light the country as far south as Florence, 300 miles away.

Two subsidiary stations in lateral valleys are also to be constructed, and the total power of the district will be $15,000 horse-power, or three-fifths of the whole estimated hydro-electrical potentialities of Scotland.

Too Greedy for Maple Sap

At Manchester, N. H., the desire for maple syrup has caused some citizens to tap many of the 30,000 municipal maple trees scattered about the city. Failure of these persons to plug up the holes from which the sap has been drawn is causing the trees to die. Officials of the parks and playgrounds commission promise prosecution for any one who is caught carrying out this unauthorized program. One tree was discovered with 150 holes in it, and the tree will have to be cut down.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

THE MISSION OF SORROW

IT IS from some vineyard of sorrow, long experience that the best fruit of life is pressed. Had it not been for the death of Arthur Hallam and the broken heart of Tennyson, we would have had no "In Memoriam." At times the poet Robert Browning wrote with so great a sorrow in his heart that he could not see his pen for the thick darkness. In his dungeon cell Bunyan wrote his "Pilgrim's Progress." Dante in the loneliness of his exile journeys in a real experience from hell to heaven. For four long years the heart of Angelo suffers, during which time his crushed spirit is transformed into beautiful angels painted upon chapel walls. As the product of Luther's experience Germany got her Bible. Mozart wrote his Requiem suffering from a disease that was fast eating away his life. The beautiful music of "Blossom Time" is the product of the broken heart of Schubert. The exquisite poem, "O, Love That Will Not Let Me Go," was written by George Matheson as he was going blind.

Many attempts have been made to escape sorrow. "Drown your sorrow in the flowing bowl" are the last words of an old festival song. It is the way of the fool. Sorrow is not escaped by such a process; it only leads to despair at the last. Another attempt to escape sorrow is to become indifferent to it. Desire nothing and we shall not be disappointed. If one could remove from the heart all emotions one could perhaps live an impassive life. Human nature makes such an attitude of heart impossible. Another way of escaping sorrow is to deny it. This makes such a draft upon the imagination as to render it impracticable. The stern realities of our modern life will not stand for it. There is no escape from sorrow. The problem is not one of escape but of purpose. Sorrow is an angel of mercy sent to reveal the deep secrets of life. He who suffers becomes strong. Sorrow is a voice speaking messages of courage, hope and love, heard like the cry, "All's well"—in the darkness of the night.

All is well tho' faith and form
Be sundered in the night of fear;
Well roars the storm to those that hear
A deeper voice across the storm.

SAWS

By Viola Brothers Shore

FOR THE GOOSE—

A LOTTA women if they ain't got somethin' to be unhappy over, got nothin' to be happy about.

A woman's age ain't to be judged by her years, but by her conquests. The more conquests she's got the younger she stays.

Bel'm in love is bein' so blinded by the searchlights from another car that you can't see nothin' else.

A woman can never forgive you for havin' once been admired by her husband.

FOR THE GANDER—

People that want you to work for nothin' must think you're worth it.

Lawyers, doctors and Providence has a hard time collectin' what's been promised to them once the danger is over.

One girl can handle four men better than one man can handle two girls.

If a man likes and a lotta boys in the fire, some of them are likely to burn his fingers.

As one woman puzzle to another, be sure you are off with the pins, before you are on with the girl.

Misdirected Love

Meet a mother, who would gladly throw herself in front of a train to save the life of her child, does so much damage to the child through misdirected love as the train would have done.
—Nicholas Daily Globe.

Changes of Color in Hot Springs Terraces

It is with surprise that visitors to the Yellowstone National park, who return after an absence of a year or more, find that many changes have occurred in the appearance of the colored terraces at the Mammoth hot springs. Indeed, such alterations occur sometimes in a period of a few weeks.

Now the terraces consist of a series of basins, each set being a few feet lower than its predecessor, and the hot water from the springs at the top of the terraces flows from basin to basin, depositing its chalky sediment at the rims, thus slowly building them up. Wherever the flow of water continues constant for a considerable time the fluted edges and sides of the basins become beautifully colored.

The variegated hues are mainly due to the vegetable matter, and so, if the flow of water ceases, these bright colors rapidly fade, leaving the terraces milk white. In a little while the edges and walls of the dry basins begin to crumble, and the most beautiful forms disappear in white dust and chalklike fragments.

One of the favorite terraces at the hot springs, called the Minerva terrace, exhibits these changes in a marked degree, because of its conspicuous position.

Sometimes, owing to a failure of the flow of water, the Minerva terrace parts with its splendid basins, and resembles a set of fluted basins, carved out of snow-white marble. But when the water begins to run freely again the colors return with all their former vividness and beauty.

The changes in the flow of the water seem to depend, in part at least, upon conditions prevailing in the heated rocks underlying the terraces.—Washington Star.

Grouchy Failed Napoleon

Marshal Grouchy was the commander assigned by Napoleon Bonaparte to hold in check the German army under Blucher after the latter's defeat at Ligny. This, Napoleon hoped, would leave Wellington without support at Waterloo, but Blucher reached Waterloo late in the afternoon of the battle, when it was practically won.

Singers Compete For Cash Prizes

Utica, N. Y., May 13 (AP).—Scores of American singers and poets compete here today and Saturday in the National Elsteddof of America, this country's counterpart of the famous Welsh musical and literary festival.

In an effort to foster the spirit that prompts bards and singers of old Wales to gather each year for a national contest of artistic skill, sponsors of the American Elsteddof contribute prizes annually for the winners of the many competitions. Poets, mixed and male choruses, college choirs, quartets and soloists will strive to out-rhyme and out-sing each other for $5,000 in cash awards and for the high honor that goes with an Elsteddof victory. The contests will be held in a tent with a seating capacity of 6,000 persons.

Choruses have entered from Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Kingston and Pittsburgh, Pa., Loraine, O., and this city. More than 200 literary compositions have been received in the contest for the poet laureateship of 1927, a position won last year by Owen Hughes of Winnipeg, Canada. When the successful poet is made known by the judges, the ancient and picturesque ceremony of "chairing the bard" will elevate him to his place.

James J. Davis, secretary of labor, will be honorary chairman of one of the Elsteddof sessions. Adjudicators for the musical contests are Dr. Hopkyn Evans of Liverpool, England, and Pierre V. R. Key of New York. Judge Benjamin R. Jones of Wilkes-Barre is the Elsteddof conductor.

A feature of the program is the children's competitions in which youngsters contend for prizes offered for the best action songs, solos and recitations.

College choirs, including those of Union, Hamilton and Syracuse, will contest for $1,000 in prize money tomorrow night, while on Saturday afternoon the male and mixed choruses will compete for the $1,500 to be awarded in each class.

Elsteddofs have been held in Utica for nearly seventy years. For a long time the festival was only a local institution, but recently under the auspices of the Cymreigyddion Society, it became national in scope. Several special trains are bringing Elsteddof enthusiasts to Utica for the coming contests.

Primitive Fountain Pen

Egypt claims the first inventor of a fountain pen. In a 4,000-year-old tomb there was recently found a section of reed no thicker than an ordinary lead pencil and of about the length of a fountain pen and mounted on a piece of copper. The nib of the pen is cut on the lines of a quill pen. The hollow in the reed is supposed to have held the ink.

DAY THAT MARKED DOWNFALL OF GERM

August 12 Notable in Annals of Surgery.

On August 12, 1865, a youngster, whose name survives only as James G., was run over by a cart in Glasgow and gained undying fame, for his leg, if not for himself. Some one carried the injured lad to the Glasgow Royal infirmary, where presided an eager young surgeon, newly come from London, and possessed of an idea. His name was Joseph Lister and his idea was that those mysterious living germs which Pasteur had just been investigating—had something to do with the suppurating then considered inevitable after any surgical operation, as well as after bone fractures in which the skin also is broken, fractures which surgeons class as "compound" ones. Young James had suffered that kind of fracture of his leg. Most surgeons of the day would have said, as probably some of them did say, that James was likely to go on-legged through the rest of his life.

Young Doctor Lister thought differently. He tried on the wound in the leg the new germ-discouraging methods which he had been thinking out and testing. The result was magical. No suppuration followed; the leg healed. On March 16, 1867, Lister used the case to illustrate the first publication of his methods in the London Lancet. Antiseptic surgery, perhaps the greatest of all the gifts of medical science to mankind, had begun.

A world in which the miracle of painless and germless surgery has become a commonplace finds it difficult to realize how short a time has passed since its invention. The centenary of Lister's birth has just been celebrated by the world's physicians. It is less than half as long since his methods of conquering the germs became common knowledge and common practice. Of all the surgical operations now classed as major ones more than three-fourths could never have been attempted so long as germ invaders were admitted with the knife. Nowadays, thanks to Lister and to anesthesia, surgery is perhaps the most advanced of all arts. Indeed, it is far in advance, as Sir Berkeley Moynihan said at one of the Lister celebrations, "of all the sciences upon which its future progress depends." Another Lister is needed to open some new field to its conquerors, perhaps another James to lend his leg to some renewed advance.

Studying Street Noises

In an effort to bring about the elimination of many street noises, a survey is being made in the streets of Chicago with an instrument recently devised for recording and comparing the volume of different sounds. According to this instrument the average human voice records 40 and the streets noises on the level of one of Chicago's busiest corners is 65. The volume of noise encountered at the top of a tall building is about one-third that at the street level below. A steam engine pulling up a grade makes three times more noise than an electric motor doing the same amount of work on the same grade.

Sure Earthworms Sing

If you don't believe that earthworms have voices and use them, tiptoe into the garden some warm summer evening, says Dr. Rudolph Ruedemann of the New York State museum, Albany, in a statement in Popular Science Monthly, confirming observations of the German scientist, Prof. O. Mangold.

Ligening one evening in the garden, Doctor Ruedemann observed "a chorus of almost unbelievably small voices." Aided by a flashlight, he caught several worms in the act of "singing." The worms, he thinks, make these noises by dragging their minute bristles over the edges of their bodies in the ground.

Male Long Imprisoned

When his wife disappeared, Dan Darling, pioneer farmer of Nueces, Texas, started a farthing search for him, without avail, even putting out postcards with a reward for his return. Two weeks later, he happened to cross a dry creek in the middle of his pasture, and found the wife wedged between two banks in such a way that he could not get out. Darling procured help, and released the wife, which had not suffered much in spite of his long stay without food or water.—Indianapolis News.

Monogram on Coin

The small letter "w" on the obverse is a monogram made of the initials of the designer of the coin, Adolph A. Weinman. He is the designer also of the current 30-cent piece. On it his monogram will be found at the right of the inscription "Half Dollar." The "w" which appears on some coins is the mark of the San Francisco mint.

Paint Your House For the Same Reason That You Insure It

The only difference lies in the elements you are protecting it against. Fire destroys quickly, but sun, rain and snow destroy just as surely.

Painting is, therefore, a strictly business proposition with you. You can no more run risks with doubtful insurance than you can with cheap paints; both show up after the damage has been done.

Acme Quality House Paint is the best "Paint Insurance" on the market and the many homes that have been finished with Acme Quality are the best recommendation we can give it.

Active Market For Real Estate

1. Paradies of 13 Railroad avenue, this city, has made a number of sales to out of town buyers, and reports this to be one of the best years in the real estate business in twenty years. Among his recent sales are the following:

Dr. Sigurd Stoveland of 74th street, Brooklyn, bought from Gertrude L. Paradies the Fisher property located in the town of Rosendale, at Blinnewater. This is one of the nicest homes in that section, with city improvements. The property consists of about two acres with outbuildings, and had a new hen house for over 1,000 hens. The doctor will add a number of other things to beautify it and make it his home. He took possession Monday.

The Tamarack lodge located on the Highland and New Paltz state highway was sold to Mr. Arvis of New York, who has placed in it Joseph Balle, who for a number of years has been head chef in some of the leading night clubs in New York city. The property was in every way a modern one, with all improvements, and located so that it will connect with the new Poughkeepsie Bridge road. It was sold with all furnishings. The place formerly was owned by Richard V. Peterson.

William Borbeck of Astoria, Long Island, sold his poultry farm at High Falls to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leistman who took possession last week. The property consists of about 30 acres set with fruits and with poultry houses that will take care of over 3,000 hens. It was considered one of the best poultry houses in Ulster county, and overlooks the village of High Falls. It is now under the care of Mr. Leistman, who is one of the best poultrymen in the county. The property has all improvements and is stocked and equipped.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bertinger of 300 West 121st street, New York, have purchased a poultry farm and business at Cottekill. This property consists of a poultry establishment with about 700 hens, and was owned by Edward Leistman and Clara Bender. This place is on the new State road, very nicely located. The new owners have possession and are adding a number of improvements.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Glaccone of 7010 14th avenue, Brooklyn, have purchased the bungalow at Tillson from John Weninger and wife and are now contracting for a large road and dance hall to be erected on the property.

Mrs. Charlotte Anderson and son, Walter, have sold their boarding house at Tillson, known as the Cedar Park House, which is one of the oldest boarding houses in Ulster county, and accommodates about 30 people. The new owner, Leopold Arvis, has started a number of improvements and also a number of new buildings which will double the capacity. The property is located on five acres off the state road leading from Kingston to New Paltz.

On Sunday last William H. Stoff of Long Island took over one of the best located places along the Saugerties and Albany state road, located near Lake Katrine and known as the Gaddis Farm. The property consists of about 20 acres with a state road front of over 100 feet, and runs to the West Shore railroad tracks. The consideration was over $10,000. The place will be fully stocked and used as a garden truck farm.

Preparation Time

If we are indeed here to perfect and complete our own natures, and grow larger, stronger, and more sympathetic against some noble career in the future, we had all best bestir ourselves to the utmost while we have the time. To equip a dull, respectable person with wings would be but to make a parody of an angel.

THE GREATEST BODY BUILDER

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Early reception Thursday evening was clear but weak. Later it got weaker and less clear. The WGY dinner concert was perfect. Wendall Hall and the Hill-Billies at WJZ were nearly perfect. The Eskimo dogs barked feebly but were heard best from WGY. After that there was little doing. Western stations could not be heard and the radio world seemed bounded by Schenectady, New York and Boston. WDBZ was the best thing on the air Wednesday night. Everything else cracked and sputtered.

German Village Ruled by Old Superstition

Although Germany is one of the most civilized countries in central Europe, it has communities where the superstitions and customs of the Middle Ages are still prevalent. A village near Rheinsback-on-the-Rhine is one of them. A girl there recently was discovered to have yielded to the blandishments of her lover. An unwritten law of the village dating from the Twelfth century, demanded that the girl and her lover be driven away from the place.

To effect their departure, according to the custom, a "beast hunt" was called. For three nights every member of the community from school teacher to youngest child assembled outside of the house of the girl. They banged pots and pans, cracked horsewhips, shrieked a huge riddle and sang the traditional lines heard at a "beast hunt," which are:

"What sort of beast is this?"

"Out with the beast."

"Out with the bear."

The firemen of the village flooded the house with water. Police from outside made strenuous efforts to disperse the crowd and were roughly handled.

Thirty-two were summoned to appear at court. Meanwhile the girl and man fled quietly from the village. At the trial the counsel for the defendants brought in a document which stated that every respectable villager was bound by honor to participate in the beast hunt. The judge showed respect for the old custom and imposed only nominal fines upon the offenders.

Exploring Ephesus

The Austrian scientific expedition which is thought to have discovered the grotto of the Seven Sleepers of Ephesus made this remarkable find just as they had packed up to leave the work which they have been pursuing for several years so that the members were unable to make the extended and detailed investigation that they would have liked to do. The entry to the catacombs was found under the portico of the ruins of an ancient church while exploring graves in the vicinity. The graves had been robbed, no one knows how long ago, but the robbers left a large amount of material which is of great value to the archeologists. There were urns decorated with pictures of the garden of Eden, Isaac's sacrifice and relics of the earliest period of Christianity. The expedition also reports the discovery of the ruins of the earliest Ephesus dating from the Tenth century before Christ or the time of King Saul.

The Modern Way

The first baby had arrived, a tiny, helpless babe, not very strong. Daily the public health nurse went to the small home to care for the little fellow and his chronic young mother. The baby's grandmother watched all these ministrations with the keenest interest. She was "best," she said, as "best" everything just right when you aren't here. Grandmother was watching, then, one day, while the nurse dressed the baby and pulled on the little clothes over his feet toward of his head, which would have worried him. Triumphantly she said to the nurse:

"I know why you do that, now! When you pull his clothes up it keeps his temper down."

Old Coin Inscription

The inscription, "E Pluribus Unum" was used on private or state coins from about 1200, before there were United States coins. The government put it on the one-dollar gold piece in 1792, and on other coins within the few years following. The first United States silver piece to bear the motto was probably the dime, in 1795.

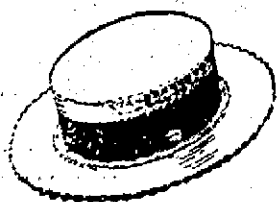

Spruce Cultivation

The wood of the Sitka spruce, which grows in the forests of British Columbia, is one of the most commonly used materials for the construction of airplanes. This tree is also cultivated in Great Britain. The forest service of Canada each year furnishes the British forestry commission with large quantities of seed for reforestation.

Ancient Inebriant

Wassail was the name of a favorite strong beverage of the Anglo-Saxons, who took possession of England, and held the foundation of the British nation. The Anglo-Saxons made wassail from ale, sweetened apples, yeast, and spices. This beverage was served in a large bowl at all the feasts of the Anglo-Saxons.

Warsaw Since the War

Polish Peasant Woman at Market.

THE Poland of today still shows the effects of the World war which freed the country of political dependence on Russia. This is especially marked in Warsaw, the capital. The porter who meets one at the train was but yesterday a millionaire. Fantastic figures gave birth to fantastic habits. Until recently no one asked for change. With a mass of brain-cluttering zeros, it was easier to deal in round numbers. Then came the zloty, worth a gold franc, twenty cents, or 1,500,000 Polish marks.

There were no zeros to toss around and many travelers, likewise reduced from the ranks of millionaires, prefer to carry their own bags; hence there are three porters for every job. Each must live from the proceeds of a day, two-thirds of which is taken up in having his services refused. As a drowsy rolls up, the blue-coated driver in a leather cap hands his number to a policeman, who slips it onto one end of a broken ring. A duplicate number hangs between the shoulder blades of the caddy. When an arriving passenger wants a carriage a number is slipped off the other end and the driver of that number wins the fare, according to the first-come-first-to-serve principle.

Occasionally when demand for droshkies exceeds supply, a number never gets onto the ring, and instead of a lot of tags representing idle carriages there is a queue of potential patrons. At the hotel a long succession of military heels, relief committee boots and suit case salesman's shoes has reduced to paper thinness the carpets in which one once waded through luxury. Exasperated guests have killed flies against the wall paper. Careless bacchantes cooling their brows have broken the bottoms out of the washbasins. After years of war and depreciation, funds must be found to restore the hotel to its former state. On top of the necessarily high price the municipality imposes an 80 per cent surtax, plus a dollar for a passport inspection each time one returns to town.

Warsaw Now Dark and Dull. Beautiful parks and gardens surrounded by dull, gray, depressing streets are the first impressions which Warsaw, the capital city, makes upon the visitor.

The buildings are huge, impressive because of their size but not picturesque. Coupled with heaviness of construction there is a somberness whose psychological effect is disheartening. There is nothing depressing about a country scene, even on a night without a moon; but in a city, with the sky shut out, darkness weighs upon the heart.

From six to eight every evening young Warsaw parades the thoroughfares between Theater square and the Saxon garden. Polish men are supposedly vicious. Polish women are reputed beautiful. For want of adequate lighting, what might be a brilliant concourse is a funeral gathering wading through such darkness as would ruin Times square in a single month.

The Poles are said to be the greatest dancers in the world, but the traveler seeking something peculiarly Polish in a public place finds an effeminate banjoist pursuing a couple about the polished floor and a negro trap drummer teasing his sticks in the air or creating a peculiar rattle from his drums with a wire finger.

Many Ornate Churches. The Polish capital has many churches, massive and ornate, baroque outside and rococo within, full of monuments to those Polish exiles who did their work on foreign soil and so whom, under Russian rule, no public monuments could be raised.

In the Church of the Holy Ghost, in accordance with the great composer's wish, the heart of Frederic Chopin is buried. Strangers meet water with belief cases under their arms and sit or kneel beside peasant women with milk cans or vegetables protruding from their shawls.

Chic Polish women slide out past some stooping peasant in top boots. On the broad front steps old men and women in rags, a mother with a baby at her breast, await the alms inspired by brief communion with oneself or God.

The streets of the capital are humanized by news stands with papers in several languages, excellent illustrated journals, some innocent gayety and much nudity in silk stockings. With the recent deaths of Joseph Conrad and Henryk Sienkiewicz and the Nobel award to Ladislas Reymont's "The Peasants," one might expect a considerable demand for the works of these Polish literary lions, but recently translations of Henry Ford's "My Life and Work," Morand's "Lewis and Irene" and a Claude Farrere novel were among the best sellers.

The Warsaw cigarette stand consists of a box which can be suspended from the shoulders and carried to a location chosen for the number of potential buyers who pass at any given hour. Brighter still are the soft-drink or refreshment booths with pink and yellow stripes, red and russet apples, shiny rolls of chocolate and various types of breadstuffs.

Scenes in the Markets. There is a certain informality about the markets of Warsaw. The traffic in vegetables and flowers, chapters of dried mushrooms, milk and eggs, live and dressed poultry, juicy pears and enormous English walnuts overflows from the two market halls into the streets and courtyards on all sides.

The practice of selling live poultry in a county where cold storage consists of a long winter makes for a more even market. If, after having twenty city women finger over her pet gander, the country woman finds no sale for him, a twist of the wrist ties him up in her shawl and back home she goes.

Near the food markets the fronts of several buildings are draped with piece goods, and across the road is a dimly lighted shambles, where the shoddiest of woven goods, comfortless underwear, cardboard soil cases and ugly finery are sold to those too poor to profit from buying honest goods.

North of these markets, watched over by bulbous-bodied country women with cheery, honest faces, one comes to the Nalewki, where Yiddish is the native jargon.

The Nalewki differs from Polish Warsaw in that its buildings have no fine facades, but two slovenly backs. Between it and the Vistula there remains the Old Town square, once the haunt of fashion. Some of the fine carved doorways still hint of ancient glories. The row of medieval houses is, in its general aspect, as fine as anything Warsaw can offer. Hidden away from casual gaze are narrow entrance halls and staircases that once gleamed with the beauty of ivory shoulders, and where astute officers, emerging from their heavy overcoats, disclosed such a lancers' uniform as made a callow youth look like a man of iron and a breaker of hearts.

There is nothing distinctive about the Warsaw skyline. Until recently the dominating features of the silhouette were the five gilt domes and 240-foot campanile of the Russian church. Within the last three years this has been torn down, carefully and expensively.

Warsaw's citadel, with its overworked execution grounds and infamous Pavilion X, was built to punish the Poles for the November insurrection of 1830. Pavilion X has been torn down. In it was the cell where Edouard was imprisoned.

From the citadel walls one looks down upon the Vistula, whose main embankment most of Poland and on whose banks are more than half of the nation's cities. Sadly neglected until now, it may become as important a waterway as the Rhine or the Seine.

Radio's New Triumph

American broadcast stations were heard loudly and clearly in Ireland on a crystal set, according to Doctor Ellison, of the Armagh observatory in Ulster, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Doctor Ellison was flying a six-foot kite at a height of 2,500 feet, making experiments with atmospheric electricity, when the steel piano wire used as a kite cord began emitting strong sparks as a result of becoming charged from the clouds. The wire was attached to an iron post to ground it, and a small crystal set connected to the improvised aerial. Several North American stations, according to the British Electrical Review, were tuned in.

Movies Reveal Germs

Motion pictures, revealing the habits of disease germs, were exhibited at a meeting of the American College of Physicians. Microscopic photography and a cold-light process were utilized in taking the pictures. This light was obtained by interposing a cell of flowing water between the lamp and the slide on which the germ culture was placed. With this arrangement, motion pictures of living animal tissue, showing how the cells of the body grow and divide, have been taken.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Men's Engagement Rings. Men are going in for wedding rings. And that's not the half of it, either. The more advanced and modern youths are advocating engagement rings for their own sex. And that's no bunkum. It is a straight from the discussions of the Massachusetts retail jewelers, who were holding forth in convention recently. His engagement ring may be a diamond or another stone—there is no tradition to follow on this point as there is with the young woman's. In the majority of cases, it will probably be a less expensive stone, for—this is bad news for the girls—it is purchased and bestowed by the "only girl."—Boston Post.

Friendly Feeling In Rival Camps

New York, May 13 (AP).—Good sportsmanship and friendly feeling exists between the rival camps of Chamberlain and Bertaud and the youthful Captain Lindbergh for the honors of making the first nonstop flight to Paris. Every assistance has been offered to the fliers of the Bellanca plane to Lindbergh.

"Are you carrying a radio?" Bertaud asked.

"No, but I might," Lindbergh answered.

"We've got one at the hangar that we are not going to use," Bertaud said. "It is all ready, with a kite to carry an aerial and you can install it without losing a minute's time."

"What's the matter with it?" Lindbergh said, laughing good naturedly.

"Nothing," Bertaud said. "We were going to use it ourselves but we got a bigger one. It's a good radio. You're welcome to it if you want it."

"Thanks," Lindbergh said. "I may ask for it."

Native Skunk Meets Lion Cub

Product of African Jungle Now In Captivity at Woodstock, Lives Up to His Reputation, But Neighbors Are Not Happy.

Woodstock, May 13.—The lion cub whose cage is in the stable at Eleanor Rixon's residence on the south slope of Overlook Mountain may be pardoned for holding strong views on some of the wild animals he has met since his arrival here. Last night while trying to snatch a few brief moments of slumber the cub was awakened by the arrival of a full grown member of the great family of American Skunkiana. This latter family is numerous about Mount Overlook. This particular animal was supposedly investigating the cub's cage in the interest of the Skunk's Consolidated Union, but must have immediately regretted it. In one bound the cub was on him, and the ensuing combat was terrific. The neighbors awoke in terror and ran at once for their perfume bottles. The cub doubtless likes game that is "high," because after the combat was over he devoured a large part of his victim, raw. As is well known a lion's fur is somewhat heavy and the hair is retentive of sweet odors. Nobody could be found who cared especially about shearing the beast, in fact there was an epidemic of refusals to try it. So in order to live on the adjacent premises a temporary ventilating plant was rigged up with a couple of old fanning mills. They are now said to be stronger than in their youth.

Lee Lash and Mrs. Lash, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., have arrived for the season and have taken one of the camp studios on Byrdcliffe road. Mr. Lash is the proprietor of the big Lash studio, in Mount Vernon, where a large amount of theatrical scenery is each year produced.

Mrs. Grace Britton has returned from her sojourn in West Palm Beach and opened her house on the road from Bearsville to Shady. She reports an enjoyable winter. She states that there was so little doing in a business way on the east coast that she had plenty of time to enjoy the climate and the society of her friends.

Kenneth Ormsby has come back to town and his restaurant on Rock City road is reopened. The premises have been improved, and the future for "Ken" looks good.

Miss June Holbrook has returned from her visit to New York, where she stayed at the Plaza for a month. Miss Holbrook has finished her guest house and has an attractive summer home.

Mr. Arlt, the art teacher from Brooklyn, was here the other day, looking over his cottage on the old Glasco pike. He says that Mrs. Arlt and the children will be up in June. He likes the summers in Woodstock and would like to live here the year around.

Letters have been received from Mrs. E. R. Perkins, now in Clearwater, Fla., in which she states that she and Mr. Perkins and little Tyke, her young son, will remain in Clearwater for the summer. Mrs. Perkins managed the Inn here for two summers and made a great success of it. Her numerous friends regret the Perkins family will not be here for the season. There made many firm friends in this locality. Mr. Perkins has purchased a prosperous printing plant in Clearwater.

BISHOP SHIPMAN TO PREACH HERE SUNDAY

The congregation of St. John's Parish, Albany avenue have invited the Rt. Rev. Herbert Shipman, D. D., Suffragan Bishop of New York, to visit the city Sunday and administer the rite of confirmation to those members of St. John's who are prepared to renew their baptismal vow. At this ancient and beautiful service the Bishop will "lay hands" upon the following members: Lauren Burdick Andrews, Donald John Joyce, Robert Shultis Hazenbush, Burton Cyril Spray, Norma Josephine Andrews, Emilia Bortelle Brown, Evelyn Kwant, Elizabeth Hope Powell, Dorothy Grace Roe, Sarah Jane Snyder, Agnes Atrude Yerna.

The rector, the Rev. Forney Kempner, will present these candidates to Bishop Shipman. Robert Williams of Newburgh, who has been so successful in building up a strong choir, has prepared special music for this service, and the people of Kingston are cordially invited to join in worship and hear the eloquent message of Bishop Shipman.

THE JOINERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

Wichita Council, No. 174, Degree of Pochontas, will meet this evening in the rooms at Brewster street and Broadway. There will be initiation. All members are urged to be present.

Convict Caught At Bangor, Maine

Lewis David Bailey, Who Escaped From Dutchess County Jail, Captured—May Get Life Sentence.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 13 (AP).—Lewis David Bailey, 23, of Binghamton, who escaped from the Dutchess county jail atop the court house in the heart of the city at midnight April 12, by overpowering the jailer and locking him in a cell, was arrested today in Bangor, Maine. He has admitted his identity and announced he will fight extradition.

Bailey was identified when he attempted to cash a check at a Bangor Hotel and Bangor police notified Sheriff Close of Dutchess county who left at once for Bangor. Sheriff Close had trailed Bailey to Rutland, Vt., where he passed worthless checks in the same manner as he is charged with having done in Poughkeepsie, an activity which landed him in jail. With the addition of the jail-breaking charge, Bailey is now liable to indictment as a fourth offender and may be Dutchess county's first life prisoner under this provision of the Baumes law.

Bailey was arrested in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in 1924 for passing worthless checks and served a year's term upon conviction. He drew a probationary sentence after being arrested in Elmira in November, 1925, for grand larceny.

SCHOOL DAYS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

HOW IS IT WITH YOU?

THE wild emotional storms that sweep the quick-tempered from their feet, quite often serve as warnings to observant youths inclined to hold their tongues and apply their hearts to wisdom.

But alas! this does not apply to youth as a whole. Many there are who flounder and pant through such disturbances without giving a thought to their meaning. They look upon the torrential outburst with dull indifference.

Although the bridges have been swept away, and the danger signals flash ahead, they plunge into the ruts and splash through the mud and muck heedless of their peril.

Indeed, the greater number continue to yield to hot-headed impulses, shaken up a bit, perhaps, if the truth were told, but still inclined to follow their rash bent.

These hare-brained youths are going to have their fling.

They are going to show their apprehensive fathers and mothers how things are done in this new age; how to "sport" automobiles and flashy clothes. Among their associates of that ilk, they let it be known that they are not counseling counsel from their elders.

There must be no base capitulation to these ancient apostles of precept and principle.

They will blurt out trouble-making words whenever and wherever they please. What do they care for frequent storms that rattle the serenity between them and their employers!

The world is an open shop filled with good things especially for the young, and all they have to do is to put out their hand and grab what suits them, just as they would crib an apple from their neighbor's orchard when the dog is not looking.

Out of every hundred of these self-willed youngsters, statistics will show you that ninety are heading for the ragged days of failure.

Each year they drop a little lower, strutting in tainted society and put at their wit's end to keep up appearance; still storming as in their earlier days, but with a voice less defiant.

In their calmer mood, in the still of night when alone with their troubled souls, they wonder where the next wind will blow them.

On their foreheads and in their shiftless eyes is written the momentous word, FAILURE! and they know that everybody can read it.

What is time writing on your countenance?

FOR THE GOOSE.—You gotta remember this about mice and men. You can't catch 'em if the trap still carries any trace of the last one.

Don't tell your secrets to a woman that's fond of talkin' any more's you'd tell your good perfume to a cracked bottle.

It's cheaper to buy a fish than to catch it, but they're still sellin' paraphernalia for anglin'.

When everything is gold smooth is the time to be afraid of danger; once it hits you, so to work and lick it without being afraid.

Care as Storage Plant

In the Ozarks a "blowing" cave, in which the temperature stays around 50 degrees Fahrenheit, is used by the fruit growers of the vicinity as a mammoth storage plant, according to the Des Moines Independent.

Mother's Cook Book

Why should we be in such desperate haste to succeed and in such desperate enterprises? If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away. It is not important that he should mature as soon as the apple tree or the oak.—Henry David Thoreau.

SOME SANDWICHES

May-Time Sandwiches. Work two Neuchatel cheeses with a little thick cream until smooth, add a few drops of green vegetable coloring, mixing until the cheese is a vivid pea-green tint; add one cupful of finely chopped blanched almonds, seasoned with salt and cayenne. Spread thin slices of sandwich bread with mayonnaise dressing, sprinkle with finely minced chives and an equal number of slices with the cheese mixture. Put together in pairs, press edges together, trim and cut into three narrow strips, sprinkle the top side of the sandwiches with paprika. Serve with coffee.

Picnic Sandwiches. Clean and remove the intestinal veins from fresh or canned shrimp. Chop fine and take one cupful, packed solidly. Marinate with two tablespoonsfuls of French dressing and let stand two hours. Now add one-half cupful each of shredded lettuce, water cress, and one-fourth of a cupful of chopped green onions. Add the sifted yolks of three hard cooked eggs and the finely chopped whites; moisten with mayonnaise and use as a filling on buttered bread.

Sauited Cheese Sandwiches. Cut white bread into thin slices, remove the crusts and cut into rectangular pieces. Spread thinly with mustard butter. Cut mild cheese into one-eighth-inch slices the same size as the bread; sprinkle with salt, paprika and cayenne. Place a slice of cheese between two slices of the bread and fry in a little hot butter until brown on both sides. Serve hot with a green salad.

Sorority Sandwiches. Mix thoroughly one-half cupful of finely minced Canton ginger, one-half cupful of stoned and chopped dates, and one-half cupful of chopped pecan meats. Season with salt and moisten with some of the ginger sirup to the consistency for spreading. Spread on buttered brown bread or saltines. Serve with hot cocoa or chocolate.

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 13 (AP).—Speculators for the advance regained control of the price movement in today's stock market after an early period of selling based on the belief that extra dividend on General Motors would mark the end of the current phase of the upward movement. Operators for the rise concentrated their purchases on one stock in each group, selecting "Nickel Plate" common among the rails, U. S. Steel common among the steels, General Motors in the motors, Baldwin in the equipments and Houston in the oils.

Banks called about $15,000,000 in loans, with the result that the call money rate was marked up to 4 1/2 per cent, after renewing at 4 1/4, but this was generally regarded as incidental to mid-month requirements. Easier rates are looked for next week.

Oils held relatively firm, the action of leading oil company executives yesterday in temporarily restricting production in the Seminole field as part of a general plan to conserve oil resources more than offsetting the omission today of the quarterly dividend of 37 1/2 cents a share on Simms.

"Nickel Plate" had scored an extreme gain of 16 points by touching 221 in the early afternoon, with buying influenced by the recent Chesapeake and Ohio Corporation financing of the large equities behind the stock. Baldwin was run up at least six points at the partial expense of an overcrowded short interest. Case Threshing Machine, International Harvester and United Fruit also scored substantial gains.

Another break of 2 1/2 points in Foundation Company which touched 68 the lowest price in years, was in further reflection of speculative disappointment over the recent reduction from $8 to $5 in the annual dividend. Laclede Gas also was hammered down six points.
